'Black swan'

Black Swan" by Bangtan Sonyeondan is for the people who can no longer find happiness in anything, not even the only thing that kept them going on. For those who have dedicated most of their life to something and suddenly find themselves no longer interested in it. "Black Swan" tells the story of one slowly losing their passion, and who is unable to find joy in what they enjoyed before. And now they have to carry on with that immense feeling of emptiness, with the impression that they're missing something, but they're unable to find anything to fill that void with. Black Swan" is about being a performer and becoming exhausted or burnt out by your passion. It also expresses how insecurities and self-doubt eventually build up and loom over you, which is represented by the use of shadows. Anyone whose passion is their job understands this. Burnout isn't just exhausting...it is heartbreaking.However, "Black Swan"'s darkness is charming in its own wayeverything about the loss of self is brutally honest. The comparison of losing your passion to death is incredibly impactful.
